The Declaration of Independence is at the bedrock of America's foundation and psyche; when we think of independence, we think of freedom, the freedom to live our lives and determine our own destinies.

At its inception, everyone was self sufficient and based on their resources, ingenuity and motivation, there were no limits on individual achievement, but then with the advent of the machine age and corporations things got more complicated, individuals became dependent on their boss and the hierarchical maze for their livelihood and existence. As Henry David Thoreau put it: "Most men lead lives of quiet desperation and go to the grave with the song still in them".

Do you have a song to be sung? Of course, we all do! So what holds you back or inhibits you from spreading your wings and living your dreams; you can become self sufficient and independent by holding these truths to be self-evident: That All Men Are Created Equal, That They Are Endowed By Their Creator With Certain Unalienable Rights, That Among These Are Life, Liberty and The Pursuit Of Happiness.-Freedom & Independence.

Tony Robbins: Fear can create unnecessary stress in the mind—and how to get out of your head when it happens.

What a lot of people call suffering is really just an overload of stress, Robbins says. When billionaires call him seeking business advice, he digs deeper to uncover the root of their problems. They might be looking for growth or more impressive sales results—but after he acknowledges what they want, he aims to give them what they need.

“If I follow the trail of your stress, it will take me to your deepest fears,” he says. “And I always believe that life is the dance between what you desire most and what you fear most.”

Somewhere in that equation lies the real need, the one thing everyone wants the most—a meaningful life. You won’t achieve that by living in a way that favors suffering, such as overstressing about money, Robbins says. Since the brain was designed for survival rather than happiness, it’s up to the human to decide its fate—to create happiness in a space that historically functioned on a “fight or flight” level.

“It’s learning how to train yourself with a new set of habits to look at it, to be entertained by the mind and know that you’re more than your mind,” Robbins says.
