Five Reasons to Become an Entrepreneur Instead of an Employee

In my seminars, I ask people what JOB means to them. As a successful entrepreneur and the leading business coach in the world, this is simply a rhetorical question: It stands for Just Over Broke. While obviously the world needs employees, (most companies couldn't function without them), many people settle for a lifetime of employment rather than taking that next step to entrepreneurship. Going from the safety net of employment to diving into the unknown world of business ownership is not for everyone, but it also isn't as unattainable as many think it is.

Generally speaking, schools don't teach us how to become entrepreneurs (business owners). They teach us how to get jobs. How to fill out a job application. How to write a résumé. The basics you need to know to get into the "field" you choose. Rarely are we taught how to become entrepreneurs, and therefore it can be scary because it is taking a risk. However, you'd be surprised at how being your own boss probably is something you really can do, if it is what you want. The fact you are reading this article means you are at least thinking about it. So, let's go into the top five reasons to become an entrepreneur rather than be an employee.

Latino-Owned Businesses May Be the U.S. Economy's Best Bet

No sector promises to turn early-stage financing into GDP growth like Latino-owned businesses (LOBs).

They're called LOBs for short, but they're working on a fastball. Latino entrepreneurs are starting small businesses faster than the rest of the startup population and becoming a bigger part of the total U.S. market every day. Estimates are that they will make up 29 percent of the U.S. population by 2050, up from 17 percent today.

According to a study the Stanford Graduate School of Business, if those businesses grew as fast as the U.S. average, they could add $1.4 trillion to the U.S. economy.

That's a tough number to imagine, but here's some sense of scale: It's 40 percent more in one year than Microsoft has made since it was founded in 1975. It's more than the GDP of every country in the world below the top ten. Bottom line: It would add almost eight percent to the $18 trillion U.S. economy.

Who Do You Know.....who may be desirous of the flexibility, freedom and independence offered by self-employment and business ownership? Folks transitioning out of the military or corporate employment, as well as those seeking to become refugees of corporate America are often excellent prospects for franchise ownership.

"Featured" Concepts for September

The right franchise / business opportunity for you, may be one that you have never heard of and wouldn't even guess.

There are thousands of franchise / business opportunities available today and cover just about everything from advertising to food services, home repair to laundry / dry cleaning, maid services to printing / copy services, real estate to weight control...from small to large and startups to nationally recognized. These concepts have various investment ranges and include many different industry categories. And, since the company knows the business, they aren't looking for owners with industry experience. They want prospective owners who possess a strong work ethic, customer service orientation, business and management skills, not technical expertise.
